THE FISH AND THE STORK

by: Sandra Yossdith Galaviz Vásquez
teacher: Miriam Yanine Hinojosa González
Once upon a time, there was a fish that dreamed about turning into a stork. He wished to fly up in the sky and travel to other places, he wanted adventures.
One day, while Fish was admiring the sky, he saw a stork flying down to get some water, the brave fish asked the stork, “please, take me with you far away”, Stork agreed because the fish was brave to ask her.
They became friends and traveled to different beautiful places, everything was pretty, but Fish started to miss his home, he was happy to make his dream come true, but it was time to go back.
When Stork realized that, she turned around; “It is time for you to go home”. Fish was so happy to come back, and now we had a new friend and many adventures to talk about, and now he even had a new dream.

TO HELP IS BETTER

by: Jazmín Martínez Acosta

teacher: Magdalena Rangel Alfaro
Once upon a time, a family of frogs lived in a pond, they were very happy because they had all they needed to live: home, health, love.
But one day, suddenly, everything changed, happiness disappeared because they spent all the money they had in doctors because the little boy was sick.
Mother frog was worried about the situation, but father frog told her: “Don't worry!” you will see how everything is going to be fine, stay calm, and take care of the children.
The dragonfly family knew about the situation and they organized a bingo to get money and help their neighbors to get well again.
All the animals in the pond helped and participated, because they loved the frogs' family, and they thought it would be good for everybody in the pond to be fine.
With the money, the little frog finally got well, and the frog family organized a picnic in the pond to show their gratitude to their neighbors for the help they gave.

HOW TO FIND "EL CIELO"

by: Juan Miguel Cruz Moreno
teacher: Karen Adriana Díaz López
Once there was a green macaw called Garo; he found himself tired of hiding from the hunters who loved him for his beautiful feathers. One day, he decided to go where he could not be found anymore.
He started his trip early in the morning. Very tired he arrived at the Chalan in Díaz Ordaz, which connects México with the USA the only one of its kind. In Río Bravo, he met Carlos, the catan, who gave him information about “El Cielo”, a place where he would never be disturbed.
Following directions from Carlos, he flew and flew until the green was finished, and he was lost among so much water. At that moment when he was most scared, he found Gloria, the seagull, and asked her where he was. “This is my paradise, the Bagdad Beach in Matamoros”. After that, he started his flight again.
He arrived in a place with mountains. He met a lynx named Lucy; to whom he asked where he was. "Here is the Huasteca Tamaulipasca, stay here with me; I will take care of you". Garo the macaw was scared, and flew as he had never flown before. The night was approaching and he fell asleep on a tree.
The next morning, he was very sad and desperate for not finding “El Cielo”, he ran into Olga, the bear, and he told her all his story; from the fearsome hunter, about the Chalan in Díaz Ordaz, the Bagdad Beach in Matamoros, the Huasteca tamaulipecana, and all his new friends.
Garo, the macaw was feeling really sad for not finding “El Cielo”. Olga, the bear smiled at Garo, the macaw and said. “Look around, you are here!”. Garo, the macaw lived many years in the protected Biosphere in Tamaulipas where he started a beautiful family.

Homi's Flight

by: Daniel Aidee Saucedo Quintero

teacher: Gabriela Azucena Ramírez Peña
Once, there was an ant that was called Homi, she wanted to discover the world, she had always wanted to fly and have the ability to change her body. One day, Homi went for food with her friends when suddenly a bird that was migrating to the north, appeared. He was lost, and stopped to ask:
-Where am I?
They were all scared except her. She replied:
-What's your name? My name is Homi, and you are in Terraville.
-Hi, Homi, my name is Paco, nice to meet you.
From that day, on Paco and Homi became very close friends. One day, Homi told Paco about her plans to see the world, he knew it was very dangerous.
-If you go, I'll go with you, said Paco -Fine!
After several months, Homi realized that she could not fly, but she didn’t mind about flying, maybe not in the natural way, but she could do it with the help of her best friend Paco. She was not going to give up.
The day of the trip had arrived, and everyone was saying goodbye to them. Homi decided to try it for the last time, and she was determined to fly and change her shape into a bird. When she fell, she hit and hurt her leg. Paco tried to catch her, but he couldn't do it.
While Homi was recovering, Paco was looking for a solution to make her dream come true, and to make her very happy. When she got better, she started looking for Paco, but she could not find him, she thought that he left without her, and she became sad, very sad.
When she left her home, she found Paco with different animal costumes, all of them had beautiful colors and wings that would make her fly very high, and they would go to see the world together. She was very excited with her gifts.
From that moment, on they have been traveling together, visiting a lot of places, and knowing wonderful cities, and discovering the world, they are making their dream come true. And this is the beautiful story of Homi’s flight.

“A BOY WITH A DREAM”

by: Emiliano Gómez Escamilla
teacher: Rosa Hilda Larumbe Dávila
There was once a boy, his name was Eduardo, he liked to read books about astronauts. He thought one day, “I am going to build a spaceship. But, how could he do it?”
Eduardo went to the library to read all about spaceships, he found some books which gave him ideas to build one. When he was a teenager he decided to study a career to become an astronaut.
At school, he made three friends. They were José, Carlos and Miguel. They shared the same dream, to build a spaceship that could fly into space, and fly on the Earth.
When they finished, it looked like a car. Their spaceship was real, so they traveled to space, and their dream came true.

The what!

by: Sofía Carolina Hernández Zúñiga

teacher: Rocío Lorena Gutiérrez Cuevas
This is the story of “ñ” a letter that lives in a small town called alphabet.
“ñ” played with her friends in the park, but when it is time to participate in English, oh oh! “ñ” is not invited!
“ñ” I did not understand what was happening, it left and began to cry.

Suddenly, a fairy appeared and asked. Why are you crying?

Because I’m not bilingual! “ñ” replied.
Don’t worry, I will make you bilingual with my magic wand.

“ñ” jumped joyfully, and felt really happy, it left its house saying…
Little turtle in trouble

by: Valentina Ruiz Méndez
teacher: Roxana Castro Rodríguez
Once upon a time, a little turtle was on the beach playing all alone with a plastic bottle.

Suddenly, she had her head stuck in the bottle, and she could not breath.
Luckily, that day a happy family arrived to the beach.

Everyone helped the little turtle to escape from the plastic bottle and saw all the garbage the shore had.
Meanwhile the family cleaned the shore, the girl played with the little turtle and wished she could stay with her forever, but that was no possible, the turtle had to go back to the sea.
Every time the girl and her family visited the little turtle in the beach, they cleaned the shore, and other people learned to do the same.

The little girl and the little turtle were friends forever, and the beach was always clean.

Magic Word

please

sorry

thank you

by: Kimberly Ayelen Tede Hernández
teacher: Irma Álvarez Malpico
Once upon a time, in a small village near Mexico City, lived 3 kids named Erin, Mike and George. They didn't know anything about values and respect. And they never used Magic Words.
One day, they were playing in a very rude way, kicking, pushing and calling names to each other. They really enjoyed playing that way. Just at that moment, an old man passed near them, and one of the kids accidentally pushed him...
The old man stood in front of them waiting for a “sorry”, but that never happened. The kids continued playing, ignoring the man. Suddenly, the kids turned into mice, they didn't know that the man was the magician of the village.
They were terrified asking to be kids again. The magician asked the children for the Magic Words, the kids started thinking for a long while.
It was almost dark, when they finally said: “We are sorry, it was an accident, when we pushed you, please we want to be kids again”. The magician turned the kids into humans again.

The child who was bullying

by: Yulissa Nájera Gutiérrez
teacher: Joel Alonso Mares Zavala
There was once a boy who was bullying a girl and making her feel bad because she was chubby and wore glasses. The girl’s name was Amelia, and the boy’s name was Juan.
One day, Amelia took courage and decided to tell her mother that Juan was bullying her. Amelia's mother decided to talk to Juan's mother, and tell her what was happening with their children.
Later, Juan's mother talked to Juan, and explained to him that it's not okay to make fun of people, even if he does not like their appearance.
All human beings deserve respect and what really matters is how people are on the inside, not their physical appearance.
I'm sorry Amelia.

Thank you, Juan.

The next day Juan told Amelia he was sorry for making fun of her, and asked her if they could be friends. Amelia accepted Juan's apology, and she accepted to be his friend.
Juan gave Amelia a little chain with a letter “A” for Amelia, and she gave him a shirt with the letter “J” for Juan. From that moment on, they became best friends forever, and the boy realized that Amelia was really valuable for the way she was, and that it didn't matter if she was chubby, skinny, ugly, pretty, blonde or brunette, because we are all valuable and deserve to be treated with dignity.
Values a great treasure in my family!

by: Karen Rodríguez Mandiola
teacher: Silvia Marcela Ramírez Moctezuma
Once upon a time, there was a happy family. They lived in a farm with their six children. All of them helped each other in their daily activities. Dad and Mom had taught them about responsibilities.
All six kids before going to school do their tasks. Mario, the oldest of the brothers takes out the trash. Ricky and Dick sweep the front yard, Oscar feeds the chickens and ducks.
Pedro and Pepe, the little ones, help their mom. They enjoy sitting at table for breakfast. All the family spend a good time together. When they finish, they go to school very happy.
Dad and Mom are so happy with their family. They are proud of their children, because every day they practice values, and they show their love and respect to each other.
It's important to learn that at school, because it prepares us for a future work life, but it is very important to learn values at home, because this is the key for being a good person.
The Crutches of Felipe

by: Daffny Abigail Zúñiga Vega
teacher: Gabriela García Rodríguez
Once upon a time there was a rabbit called Felipe. He was a very happy and hardworking rabbit. Every day he woke up early to go to work. He visited his friend, Clara every day. She was also a rabbit; she was really generous and honest.
One day, sadly, Felipe was hit by a car and he hurt his leg. He made a huge effort to walk while Clara was waiting for him, looking through the window. But he never showed up.
Clara went to Felipe's house, and she found him suffering for his leg. Clara asked him why he had not gone to the doctor. He said that he had no money to pay a doctor. Clara got really sad, gave him her savings, and went to the doctor.
The doctor was a dog called Alex, he was a really good animal that always helped any one in need. Alex checked on Felipe and told him that he was going to need crutches. They knew that the crutches were very expensive, and like they did not have the money, they went back home very sad, Clara thought that she could organize a fundraising with the neighbors.
Like Felipe always had been a very honest and hardworking rabbit, the neighbors accepted to participate in the fundraising without a doubt. They started to sell carrots, cookies, cakes, paintings, etc. Felipe could not believe how the animals were participating to help him.
At the end of the day, they gathered the money and bought the crutches. Felipe thanked all the neighbors and especially Clara for all the help. From that day, Felipe always remembered what they meant: the love of all of his friends.
What do you want to be when you grow up?

by: Alessandro Lomelí Alfaro
teacher: Ceila Belén Galván Martínez
Once upon a time in a beautiful and green garden, there was an ant hill; our story starts with an ant called Niko. One day, he was walking around the garden looking for food, and he was wondering – “What could I do when I grow up” … his father wanted for him a doctor career, his grandpa wanted for him a career like a soccer player, but his mother always told him that he could be whatever he wants; Niko said- “I want to be a musician to play the piano”.

His father told him – “ants cannot do that”-, but his mother always supported him. He returned to his home in the ant hill, and his father in front of all his friends asked him –“Dear son, what do you want to be when you grow up?”- Niko answered – “I want to be a musician, I want to play the piano” – his father didn’t expect that answer and with and angry voice said –“NO! YOU WILL BE AN AMAZING DOCTOR”- Niko was so mad, and with tears in his eyes said – “Why are you like that? Mom supports me in my dreams; Dad I love you, but I just want to follow my dreams!”.
At school, the class was about their future and he felt so bad for the things that happened last night. When he arrived home, his mother asked him about his day at the school, and Niko said that was fine, but he was lying. At midnight, he listened to a lovely music, he went outside to investigate, and saw a dog that was playing the piano. He asked the dog –“Hey!!! can I be a pianist like you?” – the dog laughed and told him that he could not be a pianist –“you could not even touch the first key”. He was very disappointed.
After that, Niko left the pianist and decided to return home. But on the way, he looked at a big poster on the wall that said “Don’t miss the presentation of the most famous orchestra the enchanted garden, come and enjoy beautiful melodies” he read the poster's information, and was very excited thinking that maybe one day in the future he would give a concert, but his happiness was too short, because he remembered what had happened to him at school and what the pianist dog told him.
Niko was sad and went to his house, his mother saw him crying and tried to comfort him, she told him – “I will help you to fight for everything that you want”. The next day Niko and his mom went to a music school, and finally he felt full of hope, because, he was achieving his dreams. Ten years later in a crowded place, there he was in the middle of the stage, our little ant playing the piano at a concert, at the end of his performance his family was waiting for him, they were so proud and gave him a big hug.
Niko's father still had the idea that he would be a good doctor. His grandpa was sad because he didn't support him in the past. His family told him —“Never give up, you look little, but your talent is big”. Your family will always be there for you. Always fight for the things that you want, and if you think that anybody supports you, just remember your family is forever. This is my story: Niko, the ant.
You got a new message from the future

by: Kathia Elizabeth Roque Perales
teacher: José Alberto Segovia
Hi my name is Molly, and I contact you from the future. A century has passed, but we still do not have flying cars, only more expensive cars, gasoline is no longer within our reach, although it is supposed that years ago that would have been beneficial to preserve our environment and avoid pollution.
The reality is that we are in the age of LED screens, today there are only landscapes on large screens. We have a digital world now. Do you remember that you were wondering if there were pictures of our era? Like the ones we use for homework?
Well, let me tell you we do. we know the world that you had only by pictures, its landscapes, all the fauna, the streets we see, the privilege of touching a real tree, the pleasure of taking care of a pet and loving it, being able to have any animal species, I really really envy you guys, it's not the same to touch the screen than see real animals, plants, the sea! Wow! The sea!

How I wish I could have lived in that time.
We have virtual pets, going to the zoo is like visiting the cinema, we can control the seasons, day and night, it's just a matter of moving a finger to press a button to perform a daily task.
School is through a device, there are no institutions, making friends now is more difficult, everybody has robots at home, families are small if they don't have children.
We all have a chip to locate us, if we get sick we have special machines to cure us, if it is something serious, we go with a doctor, but it is practically a machine that does everything. I had to live in this era, I tell you about the future I tell you to enjoy your life take advantage of the fact that you do not depend on a remote control.

82 Regards.
